Impact Partnership Programme

We partner with organisations and academics to help increase the impact and reach of their research. Through our well-established public and political engagement programmes, we reach a wide audience, including civil society, students, academics, parliamentarians, policy-makers, and diaspora groups, all with an interest in Africa. We deliver intelligent and accessible ways of disseminating research findings and building engagement and interest throughout a project’s duration. Through our links to UK parliament we aim to encourage evidence-based policy making and better-informed parliamentary debate.

What do we offer?

Impact Partnerships can take a variety of forms depending on the nature of the research and desired impact. We work with each partner to develop an individually tailored programme of engagement to meet specific aims. This can include things like:

- Events: roundtables with key stakeholders; large public events, policy think-ins, academic conferences and workshops; exhibitions, and performances
- Brokering connections: access to our diverse networks (more information on this overleaf)
- Publications: policy briefs, All Party Parliamentary Group for Africa reports (and suggested parliamentary action)
- Online: podcasts, e-seminars, and accessible articles published through our news and analysis site African Arguments

Who can get involved?

Any organisations or individuals who are carrying out original research pertaining to Africa, and who are interested in strengthening their research impact and increasing the accessibility and wider relevance of their work.
- We can work with academic researchers and departments on strengthening a) submissions to the Research Excellence Framework, and b) impact elements of grant proposals

- We can work with organisations such as institutes, think-tanks, NGOs and consultancies to help disseminate research findings to a wider audience, and support on creative ways of making findings accessible and relevant

Why partner with the Royal African Society?

We are a membership organisation that provides opportunities for people to connect, celebrate and engage critically with a wide range of topics and ideas about Africa today. Our network is dynamic and active, and includes some of the leading figures in the areas of academia, business, politics, the arts and education. Through our events, publications and digital channels we share insight and instigate debate, reaching a network of more than one million people globally.

We have worked in public engagement for over 100 years around African issues, and have a proven track record of producing high-quality, well-attended and engaging events. We have experience of proving impact through audience and stakeholder monitoring and evaluation methods. Our broad network of partners in academia, business, politics, civil society, arts and education means we can provide access to a wide variety of sectors and spaces.

Our networks include:

- Schools, teachers, educators and cultural institutions (through our Education Programme)
- Writers, filmmakers, artists, musicians, producers and distributors (through our cultural festivals Africa Writes and Film Africa)
- Academics and students in the UK and Africa (through the African Studies Association of the UK (ASAUK) and our quarterly journal African Affairs)
- Investors, entrepreneurs, and representatives from sectors including finance, banking, legal, consumer goods companies, and tech (through our Business Programme)
- Parliamentarians, civil servants and policy makers (through our Parliamentary Engagement Programme and the All Party Parliamentary Group for Africa)

What budget and resources are needed?

The financial contribution towards administration and management of a partnership is dependent on the level and type of engagement required by our partners. We will tailor the partnership in consultation with the partner. On average, impact partnership packages begin at £2,000 excl. VAT for one public event.
Some current, forthcoming and previous impact partnerships

  We are working with Rift Valley Institute (RVI) to enhance the impact of some of its original research on South Sudan Customary Authorities, X-border dynamics in the horn of Africa, and Remittances and Vulnerability in Somalia through a series of public events in London and engagement with key stakeholders in a range of sectors.

- London International Development Centre (LIDC) (2019)
  Engagement with the All Party Parliamentary Group for Africa

  Focus on tackling the rise of childhood stunting in Africa, with partners LIDC and the UKRI GCRF Action against Stunting Hub, a £19.76 million investment by the UK government.

- Department of Development Studies, Oxford Brookes University (2016-2019)
  Engagement with the All Party Parliamentary Group for Africa

  Focussing on Economic Partnership Agreements and Africa’s industrialisation and on UK-Africa Trade relations post-Brexit, we shared some of the department’s research findings in this report and in parliamentary discussions.

- Dr Toby Green, King’s College London (2019-2020)
  Teacher engagement with The African Kingdoms A-Level option

  Our Education and Outreach programme aims to enhance the visibility and representation of Africa in the UK school curriculum and promote a deeper understanding of the diversity of the African continent, through a series of funded programmes and collaborative partnerships. This partnership aims to enhance the impact of The African Kingdoms A-Level option with OCR developed by Dr Toby Green. The option offers a unique opportunity for History teachers and students to develop detailed knowledge of four key kingdoms in precolonial Africa: Benin, Dahomey / Oyo, Kongo and Songhay. For this partnership we will co-ordinating a series of teacher- facing continuing professional development events.

- Prof Christopher Cramer, Dr Deborah Johnston, Dr Bernd Mueller, Dr Carlos Oya & Prof John Sender, SOAS (2015) Public event

  We held a public event on the ‘The Fair Trade, Employment and Poverty Reduction Project (FTEPRP)’, which drew on micro-level evidence from Ethiopia and Uganda concerning how rural labour markets affect poor people’s lives. The research looked at the economic consequences for poor people engaged in wage labour for certified producers, rather than the producers themselves.
